

The new Dragon Speech Recognition Software from Nuance. Control your computer with your voice.

- Home News Traffic Weather Auto Events Photos Podcasts Features

PREV NEXT Bloomfield Software Firm In Deal With VMware

Detroit Web Site Offers Hood Ornaments For Dream Cruise

mnr_oush

GLITR, Technology
8/16/2010
3:33 pm

0 comments share print

Filed Under: detroit, Dream Cruise, hood ornament, MyNewMarketplace.com, online marketplace, Woodward Dream Cruise

Just in time for the Woodward Dream Cruise, Detroit-based MyNewMarketplace.com is offering a collection of unique hood ornaments from an area private collector.

The collection includes both original hood ornaments and Franklin Mint replicas of Ferrari, Bugatti, Mercedes, Packard, Cadillac and others.

The most unique is a one-of-a-kind hood ornament that was made for Queen Elizabeth's first Rolls Royce Phantom IV 1949, designed by her favorite English artist Edward Seago. The Queen's original Phantom IV was designed to carry the unique mascot of St. George slaying the dragon. This mascot could be transferred to any one of the mixed fleet of royal state cars in which the Queen traveled.

"We are extremely honored that this private collector from Oakland County selected a Michigan-based website to display and advertise these beautiful hood ornaments and other collectibles," said Peder Blohm, founder of MyNewMarketplace.com. "Our Web site gives collectors and retailers the option to open up a 'shop' to display all of their items in one place, as well as in the classified area."

MyNewMarketplace.com provides ample space for descriptions and the opportunity to post up to five photos per item. While ads for products, services and jobs are listed locally by county, all receive up to nationwide visibility since Web site visitors can expand their search by state and nationwide.

"If your classic car is missing a hood ornament or you have a collection of hood ornaments, you'll want to check out this collection," added Blohm.

The beta version of MyNewMarketplace.com was launched in late June to enable individuals and businesses to buy and sell almost anything. The site offers easy navigation and a variety of options to buy and sell products and services, promote new businesses, post and search job openings, and support the local economy. The site does not include personal ads. There is currently no charge for any ad placements, and all ads remain on the site for 30 days unless removed by the advertiser.

More at www.mynewmarketplace.com.

(c) 2010, WWJ Newsradio 950. All rights reserved.

Leave a Comment Below

share print

Name
Email

leave a reply here...

AccuWeather forecast showing current conditions (75°F, Clear) and a 3-day forecast for Tue 8/17, Wed 8/18, and Thu 8/19.

WOODWARD DREAM CRUISE LIVE WEBCAST Saturday, August 21 Starts at 11AM sponsored by Conner Creek Academy East. Includes a 'DETAILS HERE' button.

Headlines from CNET News

Windows Phone shows it's got game
In an interview, Microsoft's Kevin Unangst shows CNET's Ina Fried several of the dozens of games coming to Windows Phone 7 later this year.

Windows Phone taps Xbox Live avatars
Microsoft's Kevin Unangst shows CNET's Ina Fried the central role that Xbox Live avatars will play on Windows Phone 7 when the devices hit the market later this year.

Yahoo Mail gets iPad-friendly Web app iPad users looking to get a more native Yahoo Mail experience now have an escape hatch from the iPad's native e-mail client in the form of an iPad-optimized Web app that looks and feels like a native app.

Chrome Web Store coming in October?
A recent presentation indicated that Google's Chrome Web Store should be ready by October, and that would mean devices couldn't be that far behind.

Social Engineering 101 (Q&A)
A social-engineering expert talks about how easy it is to get information out of companies over the phone and what you can do to protect against